The Inspector-General's cir. columns. cular directing the preparation of the tables was issued on the 8th September. 1883. "It is desirable," writes Sir Robert HART, "to occasionally record separately all lumped in the Annual Returns under the capital of $100,000. Turning to the alphabetical list we find that the quantity imported was 368,069 gross, and they come chiefly from the continent of those taken by other ports from Hongkong no doubt came from the same source. From the same list we find that the quantity of white sugar imported was $13,756 piculs, and the average price per picul $5.52. The whole of this came from Hongkong with the exception of a small parcel of less than 3 piculs Nos. 2, 3, and 4, passed at the meeting on the from Russia. which Tls. 4,792,985, or over 80 per cent., was contributed by tea alone. In face of these figures the reluctance of China to abolish the duty on the is comprehensible, but unless this step be taken the export will gradually dwindle to nothing and the Government will have lost its revenue and the people a valuable trade. To sacrifice the Case. Per Bot. duty at once would save the trade and by promoting the export would add largely to the prosperity of the country. The percentage of duty on average value is given as 9.90 on black, 9.45 on black and green, 11.55 on green, 12.45 on brick, and from 27.10 to 54.20 on dust No country could afford to put such duties as these on at article of export unless she had a monopoly of production, and even then they would necessarily limit consumption, retard the natural expansion of the trade, and invite competition. In the old days China had a monopoly, but now there are strong 8 0.75 competitors in the field unhampered by any export duty. This being so China must either discard the duty or lose the trade. Nor must it be forgotten that the duties given in the Customs Returns are not the only ones levied on the article. There are also the lekin and grower's tax to be met.

The article which contributes the next largest amount to the export revenue is silk with Tls. 629,183. The percentage of the duty on value varies from 2.25 to 5.90, the latter by the Miten Bishi Co.
